Condron Named on Five-County Draft Board

DR. S .H. CONDRON

Dimmitt was selected as seat of the five-county district of Selective Service by State Headuarters. The names of five members of the board have been forwarded to Washington, D. C., for approval by President Truman.

Dr. S .H. Condron was selected to represent Randall county on the newly created board. Dr. Condron was chairman of the local board which operated during the war in Randall county.

Other members of the board are:
Robert Estes, Castro county.
S. O. Wilson, Deaf Smith county.
David Moseley, Parmer county.
Henry Teubel, Swisher county.

No indication has been given as to the time these men will be called to meet and organize for work.

Appeal Courts To Hear College Amendment

The Third Court of Civil Appeals will hear on Oct. 5 a law suit against the constitutional amendment for a Texas college building program.

Last year the people of Texas approved this constitutional amendment, but several Lubbock citizens have kept the case in court in the hope of defeating the results of the amendment.

The State Automatic Tax Board has set up a 5 cents state tax to be collected on 1948 assessments for the benefit of the building program.

An injunction has been secured against all state colleges which prohibits them from using any of this fund, or issuing bonds against the fund for needed buildings.

Attorneys for the colleges hope that the case will go through the courts before the end of 1948.

Plans have been made by West Texas State and other Texas colleges to build needed buildings just as soon as the case has been settled in the courts.

Dixiecrats To Fight Jester for Vote on Referendum Aug. 28

A fight will be made to include on the official ballot of August 28 a referendum on the question of loyalty of the Democratic electors who were named at the Brownwood convention in May.

The electors were pledged to support the ticket named at Philadelphia. The ticket is composed of Truman and Barkley.

Dixiecrats want to release the pledge of the electors and allow them as individuals to vote as they please in the electorial college.

Printing of second primary ballots may be held up until the State Executive Committee meets on Monday to settle the issue.

Democrats Will Send Delegates Uninstructed

The Democratic county convention was a quiet affair in comparison to the conventions in many counties in Texas where fists flew and harsh words were hurled by speakers who were either Truman or anti-Truman in political complexion.

One outburst was the only flare during the convention when it was charged by W. J. Flesher, of Precinct 9, that Evetts Haley of the Canyon delegation was seeking to deprive his large part of the county of proportionate representation in the State Convention.

Mrs. Flesher presented a resolution from precinct 9 favorable to an instructed delegation to the state convention. This delegation had 9 votes.

The 19 Canyon votes were polled, and a majority stood for an uninstructed delegation. This block of votes killed the resolution since Canyon had the largest vote in the convention. J. J. Leavitt from precinct 2 and Geo. E. Mason from precinct 7 were the only delegates aside from precinct 1 and 9.

A resolution passed immediately that the four delegates go to the state convention uninstructed.

A resolution was presented that the four delegates vote at Fort Worth as a unit. This was killed in light of the former action of giving the delegates a free hand at the convention.

Delegates finally selected, following two trials, were as follows: J. Evetts Haley, W. J. Flesher of Amarillo, Newton Crain, J. J. Leavitt. Alternates were Joe Harlan of Amarillo, Boone McClure, W. C. Black, and Jack Jennings.

The convention was in session for only half an hour. County Chairman Clyde Warwick thanked the large delegation from South Amarillo which had shown such great interest in the Democratic party to attend the convention.

Summer Program in Amarillo Explained at Rotary Luncheon

Mrs. David Rasco of the Junior League in Amarillo and Jack Hands, director of the San Jacinto Youth Center, spoke at the Rotary Club luncheon Tuesday on the work being put on in Amarillo during the summer months. The program extends to the various parks in Amarillo, and includes adults as well as children. None of the regularly organized sports activities such as softball, football are included in the program.

The needs of the individual are stressed in seeking to reach as many people as possible. The program seeks to help the parents understand their children, and the viewpoint of the child.

Music is one of the first work put on. Children are taught to play instruments and to sing with the records which are played.

Story tellers try to bring out the imagination of children, and get them to act the parts of the story.

Primary tumbling is being taught by a boy from the Maverick Club.

Arts and crafts are among the primary objectives of the program. Children are encouraged to make something that can be used in the home. True the articles are crude, but it teaches imagination.

Directors are on the lookout for foreign ideologies and theories which have been found elsewhere in youth groups.

For the adults, the program consists of square dances, band concerts, and a local circus will be put on this week at the San Jacinto park.

Mr. Hands described a boy as the fellow who would soon be sitting in the seats now occupied by the men present, and doing the work in Canyon that adults are now doing. Today he is receiving his training for the job he will do in the future.

Visitors were: J. Evetts Haley, Capt. Fred Hart, Jerry Malin, all of Canyon; R. McGilivany, Jr., W. J. Stanford, Henry Sears, all of Hereford; I. C. Baucom of Portland; L. L. Hill of Follette; Wayne Cook of Quanah; Ed White of Childress; Herschel Johnson, O. L. Roberts, Cal Farley, J. E. Bowman, Roy Boger, Jim McKnight, Irving Tolzien, Chas. A. Green, Walter Craig, W. O. McLean, Jr., Forrest Barnes, Cecil Hunter, all of Amarillo.

LYLE BONNER

Lyle Bonner, minister of the Church of Christ, will leave Sunday after the night services of the church for his new ministry at the West Side Church of Christ, Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. Bonner stated that he submitted his resignation to the congregation about three months ago to become effective when he found the work that impressed him, and the congregation found a minister to replace him. Both plans will culminate this week.

Joe Watson, minister of the Church of Christ at Fritch, has accepted a call from the local church and will arrive about the first of September to assume his duties.

Mr. Bonner and his family came to Canyon three years ago. He has been very active in civic affairs during his residence here. He goes to a church with greater responsibilities and opportunities.

Business Men Put On Roping Contest Sunday

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the business men's first roping contest of the season. The contest was held at the Canyon Roping Club south of Canyon on Highway 287, Sunday afternoon.

A prize of $25 went to the winners of the contest, headed by Henry Cone. The team scored 2638.4 seconds, against the score of 2763.58 seconds made by the team headed by Jack Haley.

Under the ground rules the contestant whose calf got up after being roped was credited with 300 seconds. This penalty was applied in the case of Haley, Cleavinger, Boyd, and Parsons.

The following was the 16 men teams, and the score of each:

Henry Cone, 64.4 seconds; Jim Moore, 40.1; T. A. Black, 205.5; Roy Cheatham, 73.3; Bud Parker, 310; Sam Hill, 105.1; Gordon Lyons, 386.5; Mutt Myers, 170.5; H. C. Clark, 156.9; Jack Parsons, 173.4; Kenneth Hillier, 177.1; David Horn, 43.8; Short Prichard, 183.8; Alvin McDonald, 72.4; Buck Allred, 71.6; Jack Parsons, 300.

Canyon Rains Totalled 2.15 Since Saturday

Rain in Canyon from Saturday night until Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock amounted to 2.15 inches.

The rain of Saturday night amounted to .35 of an inch. This ended up the series of showers which have fallen during the past two weeks. No general rain over the anhandle fell up to that time.

The rainfall Monday night in Canyon totalled 1.10 of an inch. Another rain fell Tuesday night which measured .70 of an inch.

The 1.80 of rain falling Monday and Tuesday nights covered all sections of the county, according to reports from all sections which have been received in Canyon.

This is the first general rain that has been received over the Panhandle. However according to the weather report of Wednesday morning from the Weather Bureau in Amarillo, the rain did not extend to Lubbock on the south and little rain fell to the east as far as Childress. All of the north counties of the Panhandle reported rains.

(Perhaps the weather man was no more accurate than a report in the Amarillo News which stated that Canyon received no rain, which we were getting 1.80 inches during the two days).

There will be a wonderful feed crop in Randall county as a result of the continued rains. At no time during the summer has the feed crop suffered seriously because of the lack of moisture.

Land which was summer fallowed for wheat acreage this fall has now received a sufficient amount of rain for September planting.

From all indications the feed crop over the nation will be one of the largest in history, and may have a bearing upon the price of cattle this fall.

No Change in Official Vote Made Saturday

No changes were made in the returns of votes from the July primary as canvassed Saturday by the County Executive Committee.

The returns had been carefully checked from the official returns from each precinct before publication in The News last week.

According to a letter received Monday, Jefferson G. Smith of Austin is collecting independent returns from the counties of the state in hope of nosing out W .St. John Garwood for place 3 on the Supreme Court. Smith lead in Randall county, but lost by a narrow margin in the returns received by the Texas Election Bureau.

It is indicated from the unofficial returns that this is the only close race in the state.

The funeral is planned for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Christian Church, of which she is a member. Rev. Weems S. Dykes will officiate.

Her son, Dan, is flying from Lima, Peru, and is scheduled to arrive Thursday morning.

Absentee Voting Second Primary Starts Sunday

Sunday will be the first day for absentee voting in Texas for the second primary.

While the State Executive Committee will not meet until Monday, Aug. 9, to canvass the returns from the first primary, ballots must be ready for the voters on next Sunday.

The ballot will be short in the second primary.

The only state contest to be settled in the second primary is that of U. S. Senator. Coke Stevenson and Lyndon Johnson will be fighting for the support which went to George Peddy and eight minor candidates in the July primary.

Randall county voters will select a County Treasurer on Aug. 28. The names of Mrs. Elize Price and Mrs. Ruth (Adcock) Hill will appear on the ballots.

Two neighbors on Seventh Avenue are seeking the support of the voters of Precinct No. 1 for the office of County Commissioner. These candidates live next door to each other and ran almost neck and neck in the first primary. The candidates for this office are G. B. Heath, a former member of the Commissioners Court, and Pat Baber, a new-comer in the political arena of Randall county.

Voters of Randall county should make up their minds now to return to the polls and finish the job which they started in July.

We Haven't Seen Anything Compared to Iowa Inflation

The Panhandle section has no inflation in comparison with the inflation of the middle west is the verdict of Dr. H. A. Brown. Prices are completely out of line in comparison with Panhandle prices.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown accompanied their son and daughter-in-law to Des Moines where Harry will enroll in the Still College of Osteopathy and Surgery this fall. He starts on a 4½ year course.

Rentals are so high in Des Moines that Dr. Brown was forced to buy a home for the young couple. On the way to and from Des Moines, Dr. Brown stated that they found much higher prices than prevailed in this section, both for meals and hotel rooms.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

President Strikes Snag As Congress Fumes at Session

Congressmen display temper over the political session which President Truman thrust down their throats.

The Republican members have been joined by the Democrats in protesting the White House move to keep it busy during the campaign period of the fall in order to gain strength for the Democratic program.

We stated last week that we were convinced that the plan would be a failure.

In the first GOP caucus it was determined that the presidential plan would be blocked for a couple of weeks, and then Congress would adojurn and go home.

In order to gain its point, GOP is going to push the Civil Rights program, which will be fought by Southern Democrats. A filibuster could hold this measure before Congress until GOP leaders are satisfied that nothing will be done, and there will be a just excuse for adjournment.

Would the President win favor under such circumstance?

Will the people forget the failure of the Republican Congress and vote the Democratic ticket in November?

The opinion prevails that Truman and the Democratic Congressmen have lost favor with the people. The Southern revolt is not the only revolt in the nation.

For the president, we are not predicting. If we should engage in predictions it would be that the Republicans would win in November, both the presidency and continued control of Congress.

Randall county Democrats went to the polls in large numbers on July 24. But they have another job to do on August 28. We have to finish the job which was started. Sometimes folks get tired of being reminded about their obligations as a citizen, and hearing the reasons why they should go to the polls. But in the case of the August run-off, it is very essential that the voters go back to the polls to express their sentiments on vital issues. Getting a real Senator to replace Pappy O'Daniel should bring out a big vote. Texas has been struggling along with only one Texas Senator, Tom Connally. We should go back to the polls and support Coke Stevenson, who has such a brilliant record as a public official, and has done such a notable service for the people of Texas. In addition to this race, the people in Randall county will select a County Treasurer, while here in Canyon we have a most important office to fill by electing a member of the Commissioners Court. Get ready to vote on August 28.

If and when Congress attempts to regulate the soaring cost of living, either in the special session or in the regular session in January, it must tackle the problem in a businesslike manner. Prices are out of reason today. Everyone agrees to this. But you can't roll back prices or regulate prices unless you take into consideration all of the contributing factors of prices. Roosevelt declared no new millionaire would be made by World War II, yet more people bled the nation and became millionaires than were made in 1914-1918. Roosevelt refused to put a ceiling on labor and raw materials, and as a result the cost of living went up by leaps and bounds. Truman is being held responsible for something over which he had no control.

Say, you members of the legislature, why not do something about this silly situation in Texas which allows Tom, Dick and Harry to run for a state office on a fee of only $100. Eleven candidates announced for the United States Senate. Of course any one can run for public office, but why should eight unknowns, unqualified candidates clutter up such an important election, with no support? The entrance fee should be at least $1,000, of which at least two-thirds of this sum should be sent to the counties of the state to help pay for the local elections. The legislature has the power to chance such a silly law.

Henry Wallace is basing his campaign on the record of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who kicked him off the Democratic ticket. If Roosevelt had had as much confidence in Wallace as Henry now pretends, Wallace would be in the White House today, instead of Truman. Running on a dead man's record is a poor appeal to the voters of the nation. Roosevelt cannot speak for himself, and there is no living person qualified to speak for him. Facts are facts, and the people will not be interested in any fanciful picture that Henry may draw of his own greatness.

We listened with interest to Henry Wallace Thursday night. Yes, sir, the solution of our national headache is for us to fire everyone in Washington and turn the government over to Henry, who would fall on Stalin's shoulder and beg forgiveness for the fact that our government refused to turn the other cheek.

The Newsman had a birthday Thursday. Just 38 years old. What? Well, it was just 38 years ago Thursday that we landed in Canyon. In spite of 25 years previous existence, we have really lived only 38 years.

Dixiecrats Lack Sympathy From Gov. Jester in Texas

Governor Jester has taken issue with Dixie Democrats and issued the warning that Texas will stay in the Democratic ranks.

The Governor is being blasted from both sides, by the Dixiecrats, and the Democrats who intended voting for Dewey this fall.

What will it amount to?

Nothing.

We take our politics seriously in Texas.

We like to get all steamed up, and demand our rights to be heard, regardless of issues involved.

The State Demoratic Convention in Fort Worth will probably be a stormy session next month.

It is supposed to be "the governor's session" when the Democrats shall meet, seriously adopt a platform, and set sail to win the Democratic election in November; just as though the State Democratic party had not already won its election in the July primary.

Governor Jester made one speech to win the Democratic nomination. He will probably not make a single speech during the November campaign, unless called upon to defend the Democratic national ticket.

We predict that the Dixiecrats will get very little support from the voters in Texas.

What is the status of the College building amendment to the State Constitution? Well here it is. The State Automatic Tax Board set up the 5c tax under the provisions of this amendment, which was approved by the voters of Texas. Citizens of Lubbock who have been fighting the amendment, and are depriving Tech and the other colleges of Texas of needed buildings, will keep the amendment in court as long as possible. They plan to ask the legislature to resubmit the measure to the people of Texas in 1949, again denying the colleges from getting needed money for buildings. If the legislature should consider the measure and the people repeal the amendment at the polls, then Lubbock would try to get a share of the University-A. & M. permanent school fund. In the meanwhile, Lubbock was hoping that Harley Sadler would be elected State Senator from the Sweetwater district, and would be a candidate for Governor in 1950. The defeat of Sadler by Senator Pat Bullock will not stop the plans to keep the matter in court as long as possible. But you may rest assured that neither Tech nor any of the other colleges of Texas will get a single dollar of the University building fund. The University and A. & M. control the legislature, as well as the people of Texas upon such problems which directly affect the future of these institutions.

We are highly pleased that two young State Representatives of the Panhandle were re-elected for their second term. Blake Timmons of this district has made a great contribution to the welfare of the district. While his opponent would probably have made a good representative, there was no reason to replace Timmons. In the north district, Bill Craig defeated two men from Borger, both well known here. Craig made a good record as representative, and was entitled to re-election. The record of his two opponents made Bill all the more desirable as a legislator. The Panhandle is fortunate in making such alert second term members, both of whom were elected to their first terms without opposition.

Old J. E. McDonald was again elected as Commissioner of Agriculture. It is rather amusing to see just how independent Old Mac can be, and get away with it. He refuses to support the national Democratic party, yet the party re-elects him year after year. The Democrats of Texas are certainly not sold on the candidate who wants them to wear the brass collar of the party, regardless of the candidate. The example of McDonald is most interesting in the political affairs of Texas.

We commend George Peddy for refusing to support either Coke Stevenson or Lyndon Johnson in the second primary. Peddy is an able man, far better qualified to serve in the Senate than Johnson. A large part of his support will likely go to Stevenson in the August primary, since the two are much alike in their political thinking. For Peddy to have approved either candidate would have been an attempt to put the brass collar on his supporters. Texas voters are too independent for such tactics.

We are told that practically all of the steel production of America has been requisitioned by the government. You cannot build war equipment without steel. And you cannot run machines, in war or peace, without plenty of oil.

While Panhandle residents have been loudly complaining of the continued hot weather for a three-weeks period, visitors from the east compliment the "cool weather" of this area. Weather is comparative no matter where you go.

In just about a month the kick-off whistle will blow at Buffalo Field. The busiest man in Canyon is Coach Frank Kimbrough as he gets ready for the opening of training camp on August 31.

In this country I can't get over the plentiful supply of everything. Particularly milk. I like milk. I drink it at every opportunity. In France, milk is only for babies. We haven't enough for anybody else.—Jean Deplaix, 19-year-old French youth at Marietta College.

DEPORT-MENT

If we could ship each Communist
And pinkish fellow-marcher
Across the sea, it sure would be
A Radical departure!

I plan to wear a catcher's mask and a bullet-proof vest when I go to the Wallace convention.—Norman Thomas, Socialist Presidential candidate.

Despite all their threats of reprisals, State Department officials have run into a stone wall trying to get foreign governments, participating in the Marshall Plan, to institute currency reforms, as promised when the plan was first proposed. Secretary Marshall's aides now fear that nationalist factions in Congress will pounce on the failures as evidence of bad faith when the net European aid appropriation comes up in the 81st Congress.

White House aides now fear a mass desertion of top, better-paid Government workers who, convinced that Truman can't possibly win, will make tracks for private industry jobs.

This (refusal to run for the Presidency) implies no intention of maintaining silence on any issue of importance to the country on which I may feel qualified to express an opinion.—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

News In Canyon 25 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Randall County News of August 5, 1923)

The locating committee for Texas Tech will visit Canyon Friday. President J. A. Hill stated that no entertainment was to be provided as Canyon was not an applicant for the new college.

Dean R. P. Jarrett has been granted a year's leave of absence to complete work on his Ph.D. Dr. Ford Fronabarger will be acting head of the Education Department during his absence.

This week's issue of The News was printed on the new Optimus press, which has been installed in a few day's time.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Schaeffer.

FACT FABLE

One upon a time there was a very successful real estate salesman. He had a new prospective buyer and was anxious to put the deal over, for his commission would enable him to buy a home for himself so he spent hours telling the new man what a wonderful climate and what a healthy country he had to offer. "Why, nobody ever gets sick here," he said.

But he didn't make the sale—the prospect was a doctor!

Moral: Most people talk too much.

So bitter is John L. Lewis' hatred for Truman that, in addition to supporting Gov. Dewey for President, the miners' boss will give substantial money support to rebel southern Democrats, many of whom fought alongside southern coal operators to block recent pay boosts for Lewis' miners.

Despite the anti Taft-Hartley law plank in the Democratic platform, CIO's Philip Murray and Walter Reuther have not abandoned their dream of forming a third "Labor" party. To this end top CIO officials will meet early in August to map campaign plans on a local basis and give Truman a gentle kiss of death.

If elected, Gov. Dewey will find it easier to get good executives to take Government jobs. High on Dewey's agenda are pay increases for the Vice President, Cabinet members, White House assistants and commission members — plus a boost in even the president's $75,000 a year salary.

If the shooting incident develops into a shooting war Russia will probably announce that she too has atomic weapons and follow the announcement with a world-wide plea for a "humane" war, barring belligerents' use of mass destruction weapons. The Russians think such a plea would generate sufficient fear of counter-attack in the U.S. to block American military experts from using our A-bombs.

The administration is so sure of these Soviet tactics that Secretary Forrestal's Defense Department next month will start an intensive nationwide publicity campaign to dispel Americans' fear of radioactive poisoning.

The Council of Economic Advisers will support Truman's demand for price controls with their gravest predictions yet. Besides forecasting runaway stockmarket, consumer and wholesale prices, they will predict a rise in the price of steel of nearly $10 a ton. Their findings will add up to the somber conclusion that unless controls are immediately enacted the nation faces a bust within two years.

In one respect Truman may have outsmarted himself by calling the special session. Neither he nor his running mate, Sen. Alben Barkley, will be able to leave Washington to stump the country in the campaign. Thus the grass roots, which historically like to see the candidates will see only Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, while Truman radios his fight.

UNITED STATES POSTAGE
WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE
3 CENTS

Honoring the memory of Kansas publisher William Allen White, this three-cent purple stamp will go on sale July 31. A portrait of the famed author and editor, arranged in an oval frame against a background of colonial design, is the central motif.

Sir Oliver Franks, Britain's Ambassador, and Henri Bonnet, Ambassador from France, have been engaged for several weeks in talks with top U. S. officials on the basis for a new conference with Russia on the future of Germany. The idea is that Western nations should be fully prepared before going into any talks with Russia on peace settlements. Past conferences were very loosely prepared for.

Communists in China are making gains by offering Government troops silver for their rifles and ammunition, with inducements that they can get some good money in the trade and can avoid a chance of getting shot.

Senator Robert Taft is prepared to try to have a short special session of Congress in order to make it difficult for the President to use Congress as a convenient and cheap whipping boy during the presidential campaign.

George Marshall, U. S. Secretary of State, took the Berlin issue out of the hands of the Army Department only when the next move, which the military was suggesting, would involve a strong prospect of war. Gen. Lucius Clay and William H. Draper, Jr., Under Secretary of the Army, shaped U. S. policy on Germany in the past with little advice from diplomats.

After reading the quotes in the gossip columns it is reasonable to assume members of the smart set never got that way listening to each other.

If you know just what to do with your neighbor's bank roll, you qualify as a political economist.—Gene Bemis, York, Neb.

Do I know anything about radio? Only that I raised a lot of money for radio programs for Roosevelt.—Frieda Hennock, first woman to be appointed to the Federal Communications Commission.

Joseph Stalin, above all else, has his eye on the German Ruhr and its steel. Russian moves in Berlin are related to an efort to regain a voice in shaping policy for Western Germany as well as Eastern Germany.

President Truman is being told by Democratic leaders that high and rising prices are not loaded with the political dynamite that he thinks they are. Returning members of Congress report less public resentment over the price situation than in 1946 when prices were much under the present.

Senator Robert Taft and House Speaker Joseph Martin are prepared to wind up the special session of Congress soon so members can have a full season in which to campaign. Mr. Truman is to be unable to keep Congress in Washington through the hottest political season to be used as a whipping boy.

George Allen, former White House jester and RFC board member, and Judge Samuel Rosenman, speech writer for the late President Roosevelt, are taking more and more direction of White House election strategy. Judge Rosenman, in preparing speeches and messages for the President, is insisting upon short sentences and simple words in the interest of easy reading.

Thomas Dewey will seek to pin on the present Administration much of the responsibility for the 1948 round of inflation because of its decision to pull back from credit tightening after acting early in this year to let interest rates harden and to discourage new mortgage lending. White House advisers at that time did not want to take a chance on any downward turn in prices and business activity for which the party in power might be blamed.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pool and Jonna Sue visited over the week end in the Max Barnard home and with other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Rae Robbins left Sunday for Salem, Oregon, to visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Walker.

Mrs. Tommie Overton and daughter, Miss Anna Overton, of Waco visited with friends in Canyon last week.

El Dorado was the fabulous city of gold which early Spanish explorers sought in South America.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Head and Janice of Dallas visited last week in the parental J. T. Sikes home.

T. S. Maxwell of Amarillo visited in the W. T. Davis home Saturday night.

Mrs. Nettie Babb and Mrs. Laura Oldham visited last week with Mrs. Tom Gable at Lamar, Colorado.

Miscellaneous Shower Honors Bride-Elect Billie Byars

Friday afternoon the spacious and attractive new home of Mrs. Ross Craig was the setting for a miscellaneous shower to honor Miss Billye Byars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Byars, bride-elect of Harold Erwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Erwin of Claude.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Byars, Mrs. Erwin and the honoree, Miss Billie Byars, who wore a most becoming white formal with white and blue showered gladioli corsage.

An unusual arrangement of gladioli placed on the mantle and reflected in the immense mirror set the decorative pattern for the lower floor of the home. Tall baskets of pastel gladioli placed singly and in groups added to the charm of the home.

Mrs. Walter Graham presided at the guest register.

Centering the white brocaded satin covered tea table was a clever centerpiece of white and blue Ester Reed daisies on a blue satin ring pillow and supporting a tulle outline heart across which wide satin ribbons bore the double wedding rings. Flanking this arrangement were tall tapers and miniature brides and grooms. Gold satin streamers from the centerpiece to the table corners carried the silver inscription Billie and Harold, August 20.

During the earlier hour Mrs. T. A. Black, aunt of the bridegroom-to-be, presided over the punch bowl. At the later hour, Mrs. Albert Byars, aunt of the bride-to-be, presided. With the white punch, blue cakes, pastel rosebud mints and nuts were served.

Gifts were displayed in bedrooms just off the living room.

Appropriate musical selections were played throughout the tea hours by Miss June Wimberly and Miss Donna Erwin, sister of the bridegroom-to-be.

Approximately 75 guests registered for the occasion and some 25 or 30 more who were unable to attend sent gifts.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Walter Graham, Mrs. R. A. Hodges, Mrs. C. O. Elkins, Mrs. W. R. Crow, Mrs. J. J. Wright, Mrs. Glen Dowlen, Mrs. L. S. Johnston, Mrs. Tom Gooch and Mrs. Craig.

Mrs. Joe Cullender and Mike of Gruver and Mrs. Charles Coatser, Louise and Mrs. Johnny Conatser were Sunday afternoon visitors in the E. P. Harding home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lewis Patterson of Moorings Port, La., are visiting in the parental A. B. Berry home.

John Foster Dulles, probable Secretary of State in any Dewey Cabinet, will favor new negatiations with the Russians in 1949 aimed at peace settlements in Europe. Mr. Dulles is not in favor of the present policy of permitting commanding generals in occupied countries to shape U. S. diplomatic policy.

U. S. military men, who have been shaping U. S. policy in Germany, favor rebuilding of a German military force as an offset to the Russians. The military attitude is that the Germans are more ready to take on military obligations than are the French, who are slow to make serious moves toward rearmament.

Hugh Dalton, who was dropped as Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer because of a budget leak, is being groomed by Labor Party officials to succeed Mr. Bevin as Foreign Minister. Mr. Bevin's health is not too good, and there is growing Labor Party sentiment for a less rigid line in dealing with Russia.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer and shaper of British economic policy, is dragging his heels on a program for lowered barriers on trade inside Europe. The British are wary of going all out for U. S. plans to use European Recovery Program dollars to underwrite a currency pool or a trading bloc of nations in Europe.

Paul Hoffman, administrator of billions in aid to Europe, is irritated by the competition of European nations to get U. S. dollars while, at the same time, trying in every way to avoid commitments, in return, to make changes in trade and money-control practices that hamper revival of exchange in Europe.

Guests who arrived in the home of Mrs. W. S. Myers on Saturday for the week end were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Price and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Price of Plainview, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Doak of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Combee and daughters of Amarillo. The entire party spent Sunday on the Canadian River picnicing.

Miss Jacqueline Garrett of Prairie Grove, Arkansas, visited in the J. J. Boling home and with many other friends in Canyon from Thursday to Sunday. Miss Garrett, who formerly lived here, was enroute to California where she will teach next year after having taught the past 2 years in Elizabeth, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Schneider of Pueblo, Colorado, visited her sister Mrs. J. J. Boling and family Friday and Saturday while enroute home from Abilene, Texas.

Mrs. George Schaeffer and sons, Stanley, George, Jr., and Dean, spent last week at Eagle Nest, N. Mexico, and Monument Lake, Colorado, fishing.

Mrs. J. W. Moore of Bayside, Texas, left Sunday after having visited for several days in the home of her sister Mrs. Tom Moore and family.

George Marshall, U. S. Secretary of State, is getting tougher and tougher on issues of Russian policy as a preliminary to renewed talks with the Russians. Some officials have about concluded that the only way Russian leaders will negotiate seriously is when they feel a bayonet in their ribs.

Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Minister, is complaining privately that those who are shaping U. S. policy in Germany are trying to build a U. S.-German front.

Henry Wallace is not so sure that his third party is a good idea, now that the Communists have managed to take over much of the party machinery. Mr. Wallace intends to fade from the political picture after the votes are counted in November, but not before.

The Wallace vote in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan and California is expected by Progressive Party leaders to be big enough to end any chance Mr. Truman might have for election. A third party, taking more Democratic than Republican votes, can upset the theory that Democrats win when more than 52.2 per cent of the eligible voters go to the polls.

Well, at least General Eisenhower didn't have to say "No" again before Henry Wallace's Progressive Party convention.

Oil Production To Keep Wheels on the Move

According to news reports and statements by leading authorities, world production of oil is catching up with demand. From the standpoint of personal comfort and convenience this means more to the citizens of the United States than to those of any country, for the simple reason that oil is almost as much a part of our daily "diet" as is light and water.

Our country's ability to cope with the petroleum supply, now and in the coming winter, is viewed with cautious but definite optimism today by government officials and the industry's spokesmen. There seems to be general belief that the margin between steadily increasing demand and full-scale production is slim, but that the critical petroleum situation appears to be "over the hump" barring unfortunate eventualities.

World supply will keep pace with world demand if several assumptions work out. The most important is that crude oil can be refined and shipped where it is needed. There must be peace in the great producing areas of the world. Enough equipment must be available for drilling and expanding crude production to meet the goals. Refining capacity must be increased, particularly abroad. Tankers must be built; oil pipe lines must be laid.

American oil companies can and will do their part of the job unless they are prevented by conditions entirely beyond their control.

Editor, 75, Who Published Frank Newspaper, Dies

LAMAR, MO. — Arthur Aull, the Missouri editor who printed the ungarnished truth about his neighbors—and won readers the world around—is dead.

The 75-year-old publisher of the Lamar Daily Democrat died after more than a year of illness which kept him from the cluttered office in which he had printed the hometown news for 47 years.

He thought a scandal aired died quicker than a scandal carried by whispers. So he aired them.

"It's hard to beat honesty and truthfulness in getting along with people," he often said in explaining why, despite his writing, he never needed a buggy whip or a revolver for protection.

Knew His People

The way Lamar mourned him was proof that he knew his people.

He was explicit about domestic affairs, operations and crime. Suicides and murders were often written as if he were an eyewitness.

After his daily forenoon visits with farmers, merchants and loafers on the town "square," Aull would return with items like these:

"Bill Doakes hasn't had any liquor for a good long time. The big reason is that whisky sells for money and Bill don't have any."

"John Doe was divorced from his wife, Ella, at the courthouse Tuesday. Mrs. Doe ran off with her brother-in-law while her husband and children were at church."

He often said that any country editor could handle the news the way he did, but he warned "to avoid being lynched they had better know their people pretty good before they start anything."

Told of Beating

One of his most widely read stories was his account of how an irate woman subscriber had beaten him with an umbrella. His headline on the story was:

"WE CERTAINLY GOT ONE BLOODY HEAD."

His long account of an ordinary dog fight, ended with this observation: "It was a swell fight. The owners being sore at each other gave it extra drama."

Aull bought the Democrat in 1900 with a capital of $200.

"I didn't know a thing about the newspaper business when I bought the paper," he once said, "but I had something to say, and I wanted to say it in my own newspaper."

Watchman, 67, Guards Inside Of Washington Monument

WASHINGTON. — Richard Mansfield, 67, a night guard at the Washington monument, thinks he might have been a good candidate for the "walking man."

He has trotted down the monument's 898 iron stairs at least five nights a week for the last two and a half years. And he says he makes it in 10 minutes.

Why doesn't he take the elevator?

The answer dates back to 1929. A Vermont woman spent the night on the monument stairway and then complained of "involuntary" imprisonment.

So Mansfield is taking no chances with his inspection. Once he starts down, he never stops to rest. But he adds:

"I'd quit tomrorow if I had to walk up."

Victim of Malnutrition, Recluse Leaves $100,000

FREEPORT, ILL.—The estate of Albert A. Wareham, 79-year-old recluse who died of malnutrition in Walworth county, Wis., was estimated at $100,000.

The estimate was contained in a Stephenson county court order transferring the estate to Walworth county. Wareham and his wife, Ella, 85, formerly lived in Freeport. Investigators found $72,000 worth of securities in lock boxes and banks here.

An additional $25,000 was discovered in the couple's clothing when they were admitted to Walworth hospital. Most of the estate is in United States government securities. Both were suffering from malnutrition when taken to the hospital.

Tobias Steivang of Walworth was named guardian of Mrs. Wareham, who has recovered.

Waterwheel in Grand Rapids Still Serves Its Customers

The 57-year-old plant, one of the world's smallest utilities, is operated by Charles Russell, who uses no meters and charges his customers according to rates set in 1891.

The pumping unit is a 12-foot waterwheel below a dam in Lamberton creek. The wheel operates pumps which push water from three wells into a 50,000 gallon storage tank on high ground near by.

Russell charges old customers a flat $1 fee a month; new rates are slightly higher — $4 every three months.

Ingrate Bull Chases Rescuer Under Fence

BAY CITY, TEXAS.—As F. W. Daehne and two of his friends hiked through the pasture of Rancher W. D. Cornelius they found a huge Brahma bull floundering in a concrete watering tank.

The bull couldn't find footing on the slippery, moss-covered bottom.

Daehne was named a committee of one to watch the bull while the other two men scooted for help.

The druggist says he tried to cradle the huge head above the water but the bull was near exhaustion.

After the Brahman went down a second time, Daehne felt stronger measures were necessary.

He remembered that a Brahman's nose is extraordinarily sensitive.

It worked.

With seemingly little effort, the bull hurtled the tank.

He wasn't very grateful for Daehne's assistance, however.

But Daehne used his head.

First he put a rural light pole between the bull and himself and then he tossed his white cap in the opposite direction.

The bull accommodatingly charged off after the hat while the druggist scooted under a fence.

Police Find That Youth Has Good Reason for Making Trip

WILMINGTON, DEL.—A member of the state police department, working on a traffic survey to learn why people leave Delaware for Pennsylvania, stopped a motor car driven by Pat Nolan, Claymont, Del., high school student, and inquired where he was going.

"Marcus Hook (Pa.)," said Nolan.

"What's in Marcus Hook that's not in Wilmington?" the patrolman asked.

"My girl," replied Nolan.

"Go ahead," said the state patrolman.

Attendant Rescues Boy, 9, From Clutches of Elephant

McKEESPORT, PA. — A circus elephant picked up a 9-year-old schoolboy, tossed him to the ground and was about to crush him with his forefoot when an attendant came to the rescue.

The boy, Robert Yednak, was watching the Roger Brothers circus set up for a one-night stand when he was attracted by Shirley, the elephant.

He fed the elephant some hay when the animal suddenly grabbed him with his trunk, lifted him into the air and slammed him to the ground.

Just as the elephant raised its foot to crush the youth, a quick-thinking attendant shouted a command for the animal to "freeze." Robert then rolled from where Shirley was chained.

He suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Grandmother's Will Offers Brothers a Gambling Chance

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Henry and John Merritt are undecided about the gamble offered to them in their grandmother's will, but it appears they can't lose either way.

Their grandmother, Mrs. Tekla H. Knoefel, left them each $5,000, but allows them the alternative of declining the $5,000 and receiving instead some securities in a sealed envelope in a bank lock box. They have no idea what the envelope contains.

"I wouldn't exactly call it a joke that grandmother is playing on us after her death," Henry Merritt, a Louisville, Ky., lawyer, said. "Perhaps there is a moral in it, but grandmother was a fun-loving person and she may be enjoying our dilemma. I do know she was fond of us, and whichever choice we make we'll not be far wrong."

Nevada Warns Gamblers To Keep Games Honest

CARSON CITY, NEV.—A Nevada tax commissioner warned gambling houses today to "put square dice and new decks on the tables."

William J. Moore, gambling representative on the state tax commission, issued the warning to casino operators in the Lake Tahoe resort area.

He said that with the summer tourist season approaching the tax commission would put investigators in the field to see that all gambling, which is legal in Nevada, was honest.

Moore, whose Last Frontier hotel is the biggest gambling casino in Las Vegas, issued his warning to Lake Tahoe gamblers in person.

Calling them in for a conference he told them:

"The dice and the wheels already carry large enough percentages for the house. You do all right without increasing the percentage."

So this is the civilization the dough boys died to save.

GOD'S ATOMIC POWER

THE age of the harnessing of God's minute atom by scientists is here. Its FOURTH birthday has been celebrated. The time for the genuine love of God to reign in the hearts of men must be here if civilization is to endure. When it becomes practical for the ingenuity of man, as is now the case, to concoct instruments of inconceivable power that rip the earth into canyons, lift and wreck "skyscrapers" more easily than a strong man can break a straw and with the heat of Hell burn to dust every object near the point of its eruption ... then, brother, it's time for all mankind to "GET ON SPEAKING TERMS WITH GOD."

THE whole world seems to be in constant fear of this terrific weapon. Nations seem to be at "loggerhead" ... they do not trust each other. Their acts and sayings are questioned; their conclusions censored. They are in a race to avoid the calamity of the immortal phrase, "TOO FEW AND TOO LATE."

CHRISTIANS must meet the challenge of the Atomic Age. The doctrine of BROTHERLY LOVE must prevail. This is an era when giants in the field of business and fabulously rich in the material wealth of the world are scattering their shekels in the interest of religion. The church must not be denied; help keep her good work going by attending the church of your choice regularly.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

proposing an amendment to Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas, so as to provide for a Board for apportioning the state into senatorial districts and representative districts in the event the Legislature fails to make such apportionment; providing for the issuance of the necessary proclamation by the Governor; and making an appropriation.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as hereafter to read as follows:

"Section 28. The Legislature shall, at its first regular session after the publication of each United States decennial census, apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts, agreeable to the provisions of Sections 25, 26, and 26-a of this Article. In the event the Legislature shall at any such first regular session following the publication of a United States decennial census, fail to make such apportionment, same shall be done by the Legislative Redistricting Board of Texas, which is hereby created, and shall be composed of five (5) members, as follows: The Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Attorney General, the Comptroller of Public Accounts and the Commissioner of the General Land office, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum. Said Board shall assemble in the City of Austin within ninety (90) days after the final adjournment of such regular session. The Board shall, within sixty (60) days after assembling, apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts, or into senatorial or representative districts, as the failure of action of such Legislature may make necessary. Such apportionment shall be in writing and signed by three (3) or more of the members of the Board duly acknowledged as the act and deed of such Board, and, when so executed and filed with the Secretary of State, shall have force and effect of law. Such apportionment shall become effective at the next succeeding statewide general election. The Supreme Court of Texas shall have jurisdiction to compel such Commission to perform its duties in accordance with the provisions of this section by writ of mandamus or other extraordinary writs conformable to the usages of law. The Legislature shall provide necessary funds for clerical and technical aid and for other expenses incidental to the work of the Board, and the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall be entitled to receive per diem and travel expense during the Board's session in the same manner and amount as they would receive while attending a special session of the Legislature. This amendment shall become effective January 1, 1951."

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this state at an election to be held throughout the state on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. "Against the amendment to Section 28, Article III of the Constitution of Texas providing for a Board for apportionment of the state into senatorial districts and representative districts in the event the Legislature fails to make such apportionment."

Each voter at such election shall mark out one of such clauses on the ballot, leaving the clause expressing his vote on the proposed amendment.

Sec. 3. The Governor of the State of Texas shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election, and shall have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this state.

Sec. 4. The sum of Ten Thousand ($10,000.00) Dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the treasury of this state not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION

amending Section 15 of Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, by adding thereto a provision that the husband and wife from time to time may in writing partition between themselves in severalty or into undivided interests all or any part of their community property, whereupon without prejudice to the right of existing creditors the portion or interest set aside to each spouse shall be and constitute a part of the separate property of such spouse; further providing that such Constitutional Amendment if adopted shall be self-operative and self executing; providing for the submission of this Amendment to the voters of this State; prescribing the form of ballot; providing for the proclamation and publication thereof.

Minimum Wage Is No Cure to Added Output

An economist with wide experience in large-scale retailing, recently said: "I strongly believe that unless the present trends toward wage inflation are checked, and unless production in relation to wages is increased, this nation is headed for serious trouble."

The illusion that the wages paid for a given amount of production could advance while prices remained stationary, was exploded long ago—every such general wage increase has forced a price increase of almost identical proportion. Permanently higher wages and lower prices can result only with increased production per worker. One of the greatest current dangers lies in the effort to further jack up the minimum wage, which will reach its zenith when Congress meets again. In the view of some of the best informed experts, excessive minimum wages will actually harm those whom they are designed to help, by decreasing employment opportunities for unskilled workers. And the past experience has been that every increase in the minimum wage inevitably causes an upward surge throughout the entire wage structure, for the reason that all other classifications of workers at once demand a fatter pay envelope for themselves when the margin in pay rates between the skilled and the unskilled worker narrows.

There has been no increase in worker output to compensate for the increase in pay—in some industries man-hour production is now less than in prewar times. This too has been a major cause of price inflation. A Congressional subcommittee recently observed that it is doubtful if our desired scale of living "can be accomplished on a 40-hour week if it is assumed to apply to the whole population of the country." A sound economy cannot be maintained on the principle of more money for less work.

It does no good if every increase in income is promptly destroyed by increases in the cost of what we must buy. That hard and inescapable fact should be understood by everyone.

President Truman until now has backed up the military in "get tough" moves. Now that the next "tough" move would involve war he is inclined to let the diplomats take over, at least temporarily, from the generals.

Reformers Seek To Saddle Cost Social Medicine

The last Congress did not act on the proposal to saddle the country with compulsory sickness insurance—a project which would add five or six billion dollars a year to the social security bill or the American people through more deductions from payroll checks. But that does not mean the scheme is dead. The forces behind it are vocal and well organized, and it is to be expected that they will work harder in the future than in the past.

There might be some justification for political domination of medicine if it were the only way to safeguard our national health. But every objective survey yet made shows that the health standards of our people are among the best on earth, and are steadily improving. Again, compulsory sickness insurance might be justifiable if there were no other way to prepare ourselves for meeting unexpected doctor and hospital bills. But the voluntary plans—of which the largest now has more than 30,000,000 members—have brought this protection within the reach of almost all workers and their families at a remarkably moderate cost. And the fact that the various plans are competing for clients assures that the widest range of benefits at the lowest price is provided.

We must realize that the next logical step beyond compulsory health insurance would be socialized medicine. That view has been expressed by Senator Morse and others in high positions who have made a study of it. And every country which has tried socialized medicine has run into the same trouble. The overall cost of medical care has gone up—while the standards of medical service have gone down. What else can be expected when the doctor is subjected to the politician and the bureaucrat? The examples of other nations should alone be sufficient to block every scheme that would endanger free medicine in this country.

Always lovers of music, Germans would be much happier with four-part harmony in their country.

Do you know what the 'new look' is among Republican Congressmen? Well, I'll tell you—it's the look worn by a Republican when he learns that a Wallace candidate has filed in his district. It's a big, broad smile, and I'm wearing it.—Rep Hugh D. Scott, Jr. (R.-Pa.).

August Is Month For Start Typhus Fever in Texas

Statistical information compiled by the State Health Department shows a total of 182 cases of typhus fever so far this year. During the week between July 17-24, seven new cases were reported, one-half the seven year median of fourteen for the week of July 24.

The disease reaches its peak in the month of August, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said.

Over a five year period from 1943 to 1947, typhus fever has been responsible for 273 deaths. The death rate has been reduced from sixty-three in 1943, to thirty in 1948.

"Typhus fever as we know it in Texas is transmitted by the fleas of infected rats," Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said. "It can be controlled by the simple expedient of consistently maintaining a program of rat poisoning, rat trapping, and rat proofing."

Typhus fever is marked by severe headache, chills and fever. A reddish mottling appears on the skin, and a hacking cough develops. The headache is the outstanding symptom because of its severity. Illness may last from 5 to 14 days.

The greatest outbreak of typhus fever, of Brill's Disease, was in 1941, when there was a total of 733 reported cases.

The Health Officer added that it was a sad commentary on our position as the most health minded nation on Earth if we allow the disease to flourish when the means for its control and eradication is right at hand.

Looks as if there'll be many a Dulles moment in the State Department after the big election.

Labor-management specialists believe recurring coal and rail crises will eventuate in a national policy of no strikes in basic industries. They find support for this conviction in Justice Goldsborough's opinion that the rail strike which would have stopped everything but troop trains and milk pickups, was against the people themselves and could not be tolerated because it would mean society's disintegration.

Top-ranking real estate men consider today's real estate market "vulnerable." They are urging big real estate investors (insurance companies and mortgage lenders) to spread their holdings over smaller cities of 25,000-100,000 population and not limit them to large industrial centers. Reason: (1) decentralization of industry and growth of cities under 50,000 makes small-city real estate a promising bet: (2) possibility of future air and atomic war and mass evacuation from large cities may reduce income of large-city real estate.

U. S. Treasurer Has Signature On 27 Billions

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Meet the Treasurer of the United States, William Alexander Julian. He's been on the job since 1933.

Ever hear of him? Lots of people haven't.

If you haven't, it's because you don't read your paper money—any paper money—down in the left hand corner.

There it is, his signature: W. A. Julian, treasurer of the United States. He's not secretary of the treasury. That's John W. Snyder.

Julian is the big bookkeeper on all the money the government collects and spends. He has a staff of 1,600 people. His salary: $10,000 a year.

Snyder, as secretary of the treasury, has a different job. He doesn't have to worry about the bookkeeping. He sets money policies, such as on government loans.

Snyder's signature is on all the paper money printed since he became secretary a couple of years ago. It's down in the right hand corner opposite Julian's.

Name Is on All Currency

But Julian's is on all the paper money printed since 1933, when he became treasurer, opposite the names of all the treasury secretaries since then: William H. Woodin, Henry Morgenthau, jr., Fred A. Vinson, and Snyder.

In short, Julian's name is on paper money worth about 27½ billion dollars. His office is part of the treasury department under Snyder.

Back around 1923 Julian retired from business. He was reported then to be a millionaire.

He had been a shoe salesman. Then, as a shoe manufacturer, he built up the fortune he is reported to have.

He was also president of a trust company in Cincinnati, Ohio, and director of other banks. When he quit making shoes, he kept his bank directorships.

Meanwhile, he was a Democrat. Rumor said he was one of the "angels" of the Democratic party in Ohio. Then President Roosevelt and the "new deal" came along in 1933.

Roosevelt Appoints Him

Roosevelt appointed Julian treasurer of the United States.

If Julian retired from business in 1923 and became treasurer in 1933, how old was he in 1933?

In 1933 friends guessed he was about 68 years old. Newspaper files don't show his age. The story of his life, but not his age, is in Who's Who in America.

Julian himself has been shy about his age. One of his top assistants, asked about it, said:

"The only ones who know the answer to Julian's age are God and Julian. I should think he's in his late seventies."

But if he was 68 in 1933, he must be 83 now. Asked directly, Julian said: "I'm old enough to know better."

"Won't you tell, just for the record?"

"No. Why should I?"

Woman Drives 400 Miles With Body of Her Husband

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—A 60-year-old Wyoming ranch woman, fulfilling a pact made with her late husband, drove into Sioux Falls with his blanket-wrapped body after more than a 400-mile trip across South Dakota from Wyoming.

The woman was Mrs. Harry Sisson, who with her husband operated a ranch near the remote settlement of Dull Center, 80 miles northeast of Douglas, Wyo.

She notified Sioux Falls police that she and her husband, onetime residents of this neighborhood, had agreed that in the event of either's death, burial would be here.

Banned Statue Is Restored; 6 Sculptors Rejoin Society

NEW YORK. — Mitzi Solomon, whose statue, "The Lovers," was banned from a National Association of Women Artists exhibit as "objectionable," causing Miss Solomon and five other artists to resign, said she was back in the association and "The Lovers" was back in the exhibit.

Miss Solomon said she had received a letter from the association stating that an "injustice" had been done her and inviting her to reinstall the sculpture.

The sculptor said "The Lovers" is a "5-foot-long horizontal composition of a man and a woman; the man is lying down and the woman is sitting up and they're holding hands. It is an abstract treatment."

NEW YORK. — Phi Beta Kappa members, cream of the college crop intellectually, may be able to remember the date of the Battle of Agincourt or recite Shakespeare's 97th sonnet, but they still have their little difficulties, the fraternity office reveals.

George A. Works, secretary of the society's united chapters, said that 500 members write in yearly to replace lost keys.

SHORT SHORT STORY

Footsteps In the Dark

By HELEN BEMIS

3-Minute Fiction

AT FIVE-THIRTY P.M. as usual, George Madison left the First National bank of Crosstown. He started up the busy street with that deliberate tread of his, then swung back to the corner. It might look suspicious to change his ways tonight.

"The same, sir?" asked old Tim, blind since the battle of the Marne in World War I.

"Yes," said George, wincing as his nickel banged the tin cup.

"A bit cool for April," offered Tim, handing up the Crosstown Evening News. "Get to know weather, don't we—being out in it every day like me an' you. Say—jus' how many years you been comin' from the First National to get my papers?"

George started, paled. Couldn't let on to the old fool that after tonight he wouldn't be around, couldn't explain that after tonight he'd be a free man, a man of means, no longer a slave. Only thing you could call a bank teller, wasn't it?

"It's—it's about 15 years," came from George's dry lips.

"No doubt the bank folks are pretty fond of you by this time," commented Tim. "They're mighty nice to me, too—from the president down."

"Yes, of course," chopped out George, swinging away.

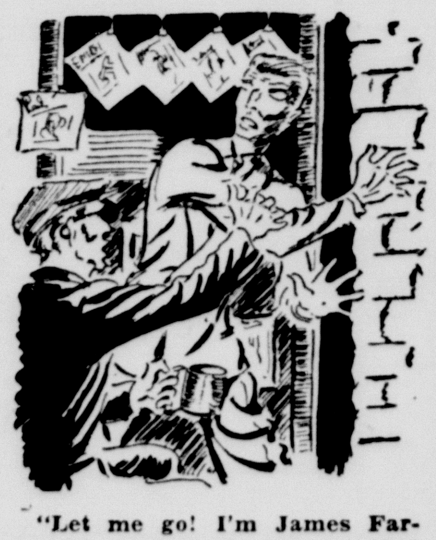
Mrs. Murrey's gloomy boarding house irritated him more than ever tonight. But after warm food and lively table conversation with the other boarders, his confidence rose. He was able to let himself into the First National that evening, nearly as calmly as he'd done hundreds of former evenings. Only this time he would not be working overtime for his superiors. Just for himself.

Finally, he was stuffing big rolls of currency into a traveling bag. He hoped his luck would hold, that Henry, the night watchman, would doze in the back room, as usual.

His luck did hold. It held so well it was uncanny. Even his aged automobile ran perfectly till close to daybreak, when he abandoned it and hopped a fast freight for the west. His chief objective now was to reach a certain man highly skilled in plastic surgery, a man who'd do anything for a price.

GEORGE MADISON now became James Farnum. His hair was bleached white, his upper lip was smooth-shaven, his once good-looking nose was unpleasantly aquiline. Even his voice was higher pitched. He not only looked different, he felt different. He was rich.

In Alaska, he went into fur trading, became surprisingly prosperous. He remained a bachelor and avoided making close friends. Three years of this and he grew restless. He went to Chicago, then to New York and took in the best shows and night clubs. He ran into Ed Ratchet, former clerk in the old First National of Crosstown. He talked with him at length and wasn't recognized.



"Let me go! I'm James Farnum!" exclaimed the terrified George.

So he decided to return to Crosstown and take a look around. After all it was his home.

He put up at the Crosstown hotel with no questions asked. In the hotel lobby, on the streets and in the shops, he was treated like any stranger.

One day as he passed the bank, he saw old blind Tim sitting on his customary corner. Tim was selling a newspaper to a strange man. "Guess I'll drop a five spot in Tim's cup for luck," decided George. It gave him a warm feeling inside to be going toward old Tim again.

But as he paused before him, Tim leaped up and grabbed George's beautifully tailored sleeve. He cried, "George Madison! It's George Madison!"

"Let me go! I'm James Farnum!" exclaimed the terrified George, trying to pull away.

"What a break!" said the strange man, holding out handcuffs. "I've been looking for you a very long time! Thought you might blow back—they generally do!"

"Plain clothes, eh?" sneered George. "I'll prove you're wrong—I'll sue—I'll—"

"Can't fool me," piped up old Tim. "I get to know a man's footsteps after hearing 'em for 15 years!"

Trains Can't Run Without Good Rails

As a nation we have come to expect almost perfection in appliances we use daily—automobiles, electric equipment, etc. We just don't think of breakdowns. If they occur we are impatient of any delay, giving little thought to the intricate problems involved in providing a near perfect article or service.

What is less exciting to contemplate than a railroad rail? But without it the business of this nation would come to a standstill. Railroads have been subjected to some injurious and unfair criticism for not making more spectacular advances. But underneath a train there has to be rails—good rails.

For twenty years the railroads and steel companies have carried on joint research into causes of rail breakage, with laboratory work conducted at universities and in field tests throughout the country. As a result, the strength and service life of rails have been materially increased. Every element of track structure has been under study, with experimental stretches of tracks on many railroads being carefully checked by the most up-to-date electrical stress measuring instruments.

The real test of a railroad system is not primarily the color of the paint on the cars or the plush on the seats, it is the overall performance of the railroad machine. It is the perfection of a thousand and one undramatic things like rails, through constant research such as the railroads carry on, that give uninterpreted performance and permit the hauling of constantly greater loads at higher speeds, thus confounding the superficial critics.

Harold C. Urey, chemist: "In a world organized as at present, it is necessary to have military strength if one wants one's voice heard at all."

MARIAMNE clasped her hands tightly beneath the oiled silk shampoo apron. It was useless to get Wally's telegram out of her bag again. She already had memorized it.

Wally was passing through Chicago on his way to a new job in Hawaii. That was all Mariamne needed to know.

Every penny she had in the world went into this sudden beautification. Every cent she had in the world except Grandmother's twenty dollar bill. She couldn't break into that. Grandmother had sealed it in an old envelope and told her:

"Emergency only! Mind, now! It's never to be spent on anything unless you're right down to hardpan. Nothing less than emergency!"

Wally almost kissed the heart out of her in the station. Then, "You're looking swell, Mariamne. Swell. How's the job?"

"Oh—grand," she lied. "Forty a week only—but they promise me a raise pretty soon."

They were walking now, shoulder to shoulder, along the ramp.

"And your new job, Wally," she was asking him. "Tell me about it."

"Not much to tell," he replied. "Manager of a sugar plantation. Five thousand a year and maintenance. They let me out of the old job Thursday and I clicked with this Friday."

HE HAD stopped before a florist's window. Wally always admitted he couldn't pass a florist's window. In New York every time they passed a florist shop, Wally insisted on stopping in to buy her a single orchid.

"Gardenias are just as nice—and so fragrant," Mariamne always told him.

"Sa-ay, you must take me for a piker! An orchid for Mariamne, nothing less, woman!"

Now he stopped, true to form, staring in the window. There was a display of orchids with the price marked $1.75. And a box lined with creamy gardenias marked, too. Special 25 cents each.

"Come on," he said. "We'll have to have a—flower, honey."

Inside he drew a twenty-five cent piece out of his pocket and flung it on the counter. "A gardenia for the lady," he said. "A fresh one!"

The clerk selected a very fresh one. "Twenty-six cents, please. Penny sales tax."

Wally flushed. He patted his pockets. "—er—I—Mariamne, honey — have you a penny change? I— I—"

Mariamne made a pretense of opening her purse. She knew there was no penny there. But this was an emergency. She took Grandmother's old envelope and broke the seal.

"Oh—grand," she lied. "Forty a week only — but they promise me a raise pretty soon."

"I'll need change, anyhow," she said to the clerk.

OUTSIDE on the boulevard again, Wally was silent, red-faced.

"C'mon, Wally, tell Mamma — all," said Mariamne quietly. "You—haven't a job."

"That's right — you're right!" he exploded. "But I did have. Got it Friday like I told you, honey, but an hour later they got a radiogram that the plantation had been flooded! No job!"

"And that quarter was your last cent. And you'd spend it on—me." Tears were in her eyes.

"Yes, just a cheap skate—that's me," he admitted. "Orchid for Mariamne, I always said. But I got down to a gardenia!"

"A liar," she said accusingly. "We're both liars. Me, I have a job, yes. Fourteen dollars — not forty —a week. Filing. And I've got nineteen dollars and ninety-nine cents, Wally. It'll buy the license—"

"What license?" he asked.

"Marriage license, darling," she said gently.

"You mean you'd marry me—and me with no job?"

"Would I! You mean will I—and —thank you, sir, yes. What's the matter?"

"There's another florist shop," he said huskily. "This is a moment that calls for an orchid, darling. Gimme some money for it."

Still Plenty of Meat Despite Shortage Cry

An unprecedented phenomenon has occurred during the past few years. It might be said that America has become morbidly statistics conscious. People watch reports on crops, car production, consumption, livestock population and a thousand other items with the same fascination they watch baseball scores. Anyone with an ax to grind can capitalize to his heart's content on this preoccupation with statistics. Statistics can be distorted to prove anything—shortages, abundance, high prices or low prices. Even where intent is above question the citing of bare statistics is tricky business. For example, there have been reams of statistics quoted in the press on the meat supply in this country. Judging by some of the reports, we should have had a dozen meat famines over the past few years. But the housewife still trots down to the store and comes home with meat. She can get good quality meat that has been prepared under the most stringent sanitary requirements at prices that are not out of line in the light of existing conditions. And statistics notwithstanding, there is reason to believe she will continue to do so.

The outlook for overall meat production is reasonably good. Slaughter supplies of hogs may be two to four per cent smaller than last summer. Slaughter supplies of well-finished cattle probably will be much smaller this summer than last, but this decrease will be offset in part at least by marketings of grass fed cattle. When it comes to a meat supply, the diet of our citizens is unsurpassed.

The meat industry, from farmers and packers to consumers, offers a remarkable demonstration of the free market in which production is encouraged as contrasted with black markets which flourish on artificially frozen prices and dwindling supplies. And statistics can't change this fact.

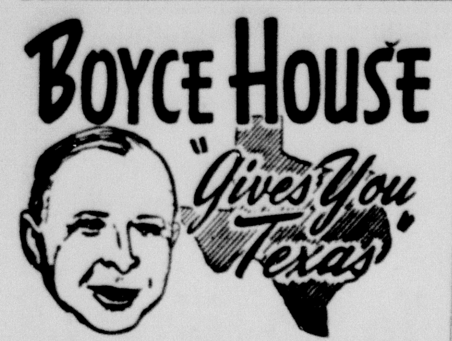
BOYCE HOUSE "Gives You Texas"



"Meet Mr. Average Man" is an amusing article which appeared in the Gilcrafter Magazine and is quoted by permission of the Gilbert Paper Co., of Menasha, Wisconsin:

The most interesting person in the world is the average man. The average man is 39 around the chest, 40 around the waist, 90 around the golf course and a nuisance around the home.

He gets up first in the morning, is second at the morning paper, third in the bathroom and practically misses the bus to town. He wears a conventional gray or brown suit with a white shirt but always thought he'd be at his best in a checkered suit with a dark flannel shirt and a bright red tie. He passes up the French-fried potatoes and the hot rolls at lunch and then eats mince pie to bridge the gap.

He can hit two quail out of five tries, catches an occasional fish, plays poker once a month, opens with a large pair, bluffs when he is winner and doesn't like conversation when he is loser. He complains about taxes, shortages of labor and politics. He has a favorite football team but will take the other team and fourteen points.

He drinks three cups of coffee per day, likes his toast hot and is always going to clean out the garage some Saturday afternoon. He has three false teeth, five fillings, a small cavity and needs a hair cut. He shaves once a day with an extra thrown in on appropriate occasions.

He contributes regularly to the support of his pastor, congressman, poker friends and many others who are not mentioned on his income tax return. He takes reducing exercises regularly three days in a row sometimes and holds his stomach in when people look like they are about to tell him he is getting fat.

He wears the ties people give him for Christmas and knows some stories about the same color. He can't remember much about the Lady of the Lake or Julius Caesar but can do a complete rendition of the Face on the Barroom Floor.

He reads mystery stories and doesn't peek into the back of the book to see how they come out. He likes certain pictures no matter who painted them and couldn't tell you for the life of him what Mrs. Soanso wore at the dance.

He needs a new suit of dinner clothes and there is a rip in his hunting coat. He is supposed to live to be 74, had pains at 22, should have been shot at 30 and feels fine at 48. He has sparrows in the attic, termites in the flooring and mice in the pantry.

He's going to buy a small farm some day, just out of town, and live there—and do part of the farm work personally. He was to old to join the army, is too young to enjoy social security and too lazy to exercise down to the correct weight. You meet him every day at the bank, in the store, the office, on the street and in front of the mirror.

P. S. He's a regular guy. You really ought to know him better.

Power Dams Do Not Answer in Flood Control

If leaders in our government should announce: "We are favoring a Federal power development program patterned after Russian five-year plans which provide government ownership of electric power," the nation would be shocked, because most of the people do not believe in the communistic philosophy of government. And yet we swallow that philosophy and year by year extend government ownership of as basic an industry as electric power, when it is fed to us under different labels.

A continuation of the prevailing trend toward a government power monopoly will result in socializing the electric power industry within the foreseeable future. Public power advocates are now so bold that they no longer talk about Federal hydroelectric power development as a by-product of flood control, navigation, irrigation, etc.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is openly asking authority to start construction on a $54,000,000 steam generating plant. This is entirely outside the original by-product "hydro" powers granted it but is in line with a socialistic activity once it is established. Congress is to be commended for turning it down at the session just closed. Unless cut off at the neck, government monopolies expand and swallow all private competition.

The Northwest flood definitely proved expensive power dams are wholly useless in controlling floods. But flood control is not what those who talk loudest about it really want. They want government-owned power projects to replace private enterprise in the electric field. Flood control does not start with power dams. It starts back on the farm, on the small streams, by diking in low areas, by dams where necessary that are empty when the floods come, and not full of water for the purpose of generating electricity.

Congressional leaders should demand a clarification of Federal power policy after the elections. There should be a complete overhauling of the public power monopoly, and provisions adopted for equal treatment of public and private business agencies from the standpoint of taxation —in other words, end tax subsidized tax-exempt government business that competes with private citizens. Why be backward about supporting the American way of conducting business?

Great Britain and Italy have quietly opened up trade talks with Russia. Paul Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, has ordered a hands-off policy because he is sure that recovery of Western Europe depends on East-West trade as well as on American money.

Residents of the western European nations couldn't understand the Congressional opposition to ERP appropriations; they thought the whole thing was a capital idea.

One way to get a good, lasting finish on your car is to try and beat the train to the crossing.

Record rise in miners' wages has started a frenzy of mechanization and cost reduction schemes in coal mines. Operators forsee a battle for business among themselves and with rival fuels. Mining machinery and conveyor belt producers (Joy, Goodman, Jeffrey, Hewitt-Robins, Ingersoll-Rand, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear and others) are swamped with orders.

These new shiftless automobiles have nothing on some people we know. They've been that way right along.

Berlin Needed To Save Face For the Allies

The importance of Berlin to the Western allies cannot be judged purely on material grounds. We, and England, could administer our part of Germany from within our zone. It is possible that we would have been better off if we had never established headuarters in Berlin at all. It is certainly clear that we should have initially insisted on a supply corridor of our own, rather than trusting to generalized verbal agreements with Stalin. But all that is water over the dam, and the unfortunate fact is that American prestige is inextricably tied in with the Berlin controversy. It is now a question of what the Chinese call "face."

On top of that, there is a vital question of moral obligation involved. Should Russia take over Berlin, thousands of prominent antinazi and anti-communist Germans who have sided courageously with the Western world might be liquidated. At best, they would suffer severe privations. And that would certainly weaken the democratic spirit in the other European nations which are on our side.

So Berlin has become a symbol—a testing ground of the strength of two opposed theories of life and government. And that is why we have held firm, and are running the greatest risks in an attempt to hold our ground, and to induce Russia to live up to what we consider clear agreements made during and immediately after the war.

It is all a gamble on both sides. We are gambling that the Russians do not want war and will decide to cooperate. Our diplomatic notes, though couched in strong terms, have been designed to give Russia a chance to pull back without sacrificing her own prestige. The Russians are also gambling that the United States will not let matters reach the point where war is the only solution, and will either withdraw from Berlin, or, more likely, will agree to a new conference on the disposition of Germany on Soviet terms.

The high American authorities, both in Berlin and Washington, have acted with calmness and restraint. General Clay has given no ground, but neither has he rattled the saber. Secretary Marshall has said again and again that U.S. policy is based on avoiding "the tragedy of war" with Russia. However, there is always the danger of some "incident" that will stir up great popular anger, lead to a further succession of incidents, and so make the chance of open hostilities imminent.

In that connection, there is one school of people who seem to feel that eventual war with Russia is inevitable, and that we should start it now while we have the A-bomb, and the Communists, presumably, have not. Anyone who believes in this theory of so-called "preventive war" would do well to read an article in the July Harper's by Hanson W. Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin is military editor of the New York Times, and has written many books and innumerable brief pieces on military affairs. According to him, the major Russian industrial targets are beyond the range of present-day bombers, unless we go to the extreme of one-way, suicide missions—which would certain be alien to the American mentality. On top of that, the Russians are known to be heavy producers of modern fighters. And even if we were to overcome these obstacles, he goes on, we could not destroy the Russian army. It would spread throughout Europe. It has been developed to live off the land to a remarkable extent, thus largely eliminating the need for vulnerable supply trains. We could only achieve ultimate victory, he thinks, by an actual invasion of Europe.

What would be the cost of this? In Mr. Baldwin's opinion, the money cost would be so great as to imperil our economic system and force repudiation of the national debt. In man-power, the casualties would be tremendous—and we have no reason to expect that our own civilian population would be safe from Russian attack by planes and missiles. Further, the very Europe we are trying to save would be lost. In Mr. Baldwin's words, "the ideals and cultures of Western Civilization probably would be forever destroyed if war came before recovery from past illness was accomplished. Preventive war would, therefore, defeat our own purpose; we could conquer Russia, but you do not defeat ideologies by the sword."

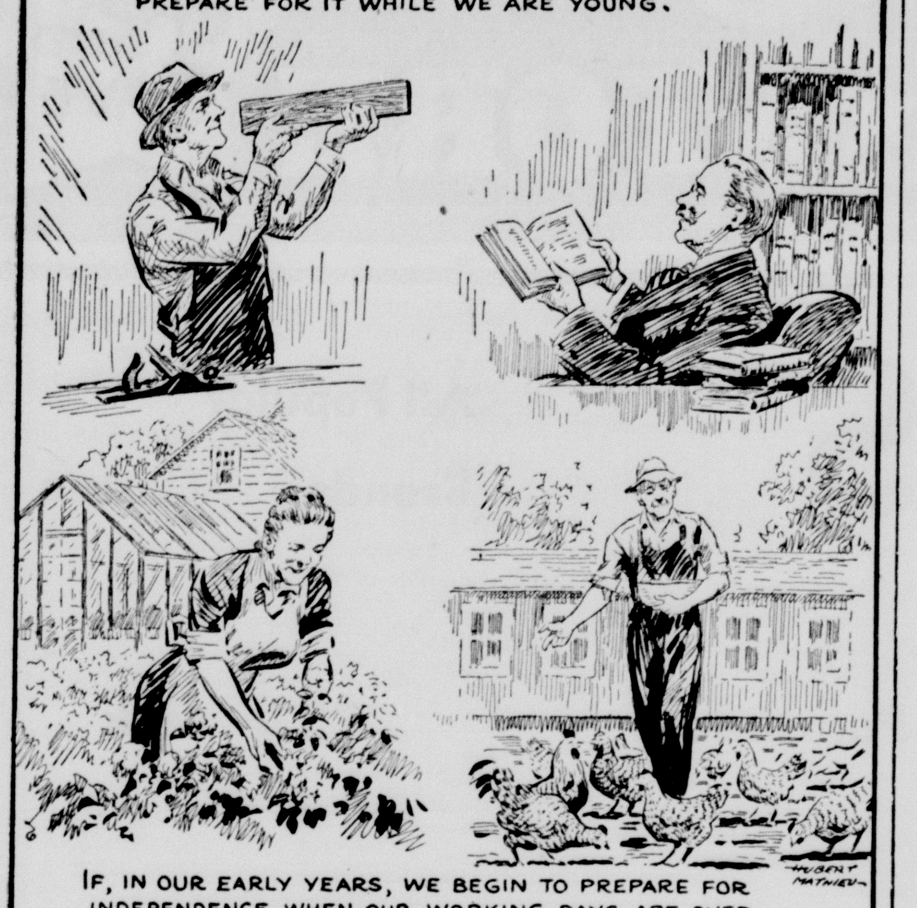
Even if we were victorious, in sum, we would lose, and so would all the rest of the world. Each modern war has brought destruction on a scale far greater than its predecessors. No responsible authority believes that World War III would be any exception to this grim rule.

Mr. Baldwin's conclusion is that we must maintain our strength, face the dangers squarely, and do all that we can to at least delay war. As he puts it, "We face a 'time of troubles.' But we shall not ease our way by inviting war." That, generally speaking, is the attitude of most reasoning people in the West. Under the best of conditions, a great many years will go by before the world can recover from the last war. Another, and greater war in the near future would produce consequences beyond the capacity of the human mind to anticipate.

OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat

"Old age, believe me, is a good and pleasant time."
—JANE ELLEN HARRISON

MAKING OUR OLD AGE "A GOOD AND PLEASANT TIME" DEPENDS TO A LARGE EXTENT ON HOW WELL WE PREPARE FOR IT WHILE WE ARE YOUNG.



IF, IN OUR EARLY YEARS, WE BEGIN TO PREPARE FOR INDEPENDENCE WHEN OUR WORKING DAYS ARE OVER BY SETTING MONEY ASIDE REGULARLY IN LIFE INSURANCE AND SAVINGS AND BEGIN TO CULTIVATE HOBBIES AND INTERESTS IN THE BROAD PUBLIC WELFARE THAT WILL GROW WITH US — WE WILL BE PROVIDING THE TWO MOST IMPORTANT INGREDIENTS FOR A HAPPY OLD AGE —

FINANCIAL SECURITY AND SOMETHING INTERESTING TO DO.

Lower Prices Are Linked in Inflation Fight

American business leaders, gathered for the Harvard Business School Alumni Conference heard appeals to fight inflation with lower prices and "a new statesmanship on the part of business and organized labor."

The president of R. H. Macy & Company, Inc., said: "We must fight for a lower level of prices on which depends the maintenance of a standard of living adequate to support a prosperous United States.

"People in this country want better things, better made things and better looking things, and they want to pay less for them so they may enjoy more of them. . . .

"The key to the whole equation is lower prices and greater aggregrate profits produced by lesser unit profits spread over more articles made and sold."

That is the story that progressive stores have been preaching for years. That is the philosophy upon which retailing is based. It has been a constant brake working against runaway prices in the United States.

A retail distribution system that operates on this basis is a life-saver for the consumer because it discourages any tendency to charge "all the traffic will bear." It is a hopeful sign when leaders in business and labor recognize these fundamental principles.

Margarine tax repeal advocates have not lost heart at the Senate's failure to act on the bill passed by the House. They plan a more determined drive in the special session to knock out 62-year-old Federal margarine taxes and license fees.

Big steel will abandon its horrid base-point pricing system, adopt an f.o.b. mill price system and hand steel buyers the biggest price bump they've had in years. Observers say the corporation hopes squawks by steel users will persuade the Government to reverse its stand on base-point pricing.

Cotton promises a bumper crop of 14 million bales, three million above the average since 1937. But this will not mean cheaper sheets, hankies and shirts because the Government price support level (31c a lb.) will keep the price about three times higher than pre-war.

Every year, America has 5,000,000 "fall guys"!

EACH PASSING YEAR, about 5,000,000 people accidentally fall and get hurt badly enough to need medical attention. So the National Safety Council tells us.

Above, you see several innocent-looking yet fiendish causes of such mishaps. They're put there to show that you never can tell what unforeseen quirk of fate may change the course of your normal existence.

And since it is impossible to predict the future, it's wiser to prepare for it.

One sure way to do that is to invest in U.S. Security Bonds now. Regularly . . . automatically. For a cushion of dollars is a mighty comforting piece of property to own.

Why U. S. Security Bonds? Because they are the safest investment in the world—backed by Uncle Sam. And it is a paying investment—returning to you, after 10 years, four dollars for every three you tuck away.

The handiest way to buy U.S. Security Bonds is on the Payroll Savings Plan. Ask the cashier at your office or factory about it.

★ Your Security Bond dollars do more than give YOU security. They do their part to insure a stable economy. Wise saving means more sensible spending—fewer dollars to bid up prices on scarce goods. Also every dollar invested in Bonds retires an equal amount of inflationary credit.
